

A small number of workers of what the writer believes to be this species were taken from beneath the bark of the trunk of an oak tree, in a low, not well drained patch of woodlands. The workers were very timid and tried to avoid capture by frantically running away or hiding under flakes of bark and remaining perfectly still. Their food is undoubtedly honey dew.

- 88 - F. nuxa obscuripes.
 189 - Synphenista pergandei
 ✓ 90 - F. p. f. nitidiventris
 ✓ 91 - Lasius aphidicola
 92 - Aphaenogaster dextrana. nov. var.
 ✓ 93 - " fulva var. picea - Boyle
 ✓ 94 - Onodopsis arenivaga?
 95 - Formica p. fulva var. ruccinea?
     A. & N. G. 128. 27.
 ✓ 96 - Aph. famellidens. Oc. Spruiger
 ✓ 97 - " dextrana fuscicornis. A. & N.
 ✓ 98 - C. minutissima?
 ✓ 99 - Aph. f. aquia - Costa. Ant.
 100 - O. impatiens var. dentacea Frey
     A. & N. coll.
 ✓ 101 - Onoc. crassum
 102 - " crassicornis
 103 - Stenigaster guttella.