

genitalia, but in no dolichoderine genus known to me does the male have Mayrian furrows on the mesonotum, or such peculiarly reduced mandibles, slender palpi and antennæ. The male of the primitive genus Aneuretus, however, is still unknown, and it is therefore possible that the specimen from Larat may belong to this or to some allied genus of which the worker has not been seen.