

Fig. 1. Monomorium boltoni n. sp. A, worker, side view, pubescence omitted. B, worker head, dorsal view, pilosity and pubescence omitted. C, worker, petiole and postpetiole, side view. D, worker, clypeus, dorsal view, pubescence omitted. E, female side view. F, female, inclined to show inside of propodeal protuberances, pilosity omitted. G, female, dorsal view.

margin; SL (scape length) 0.61–0.62 mm; SI (scape index:  $SL \times 100/HW$ ) 113–119; sides of the head shallowly convex in full face view; antennal club of three segments; dorsum of head with two rows of 6–7 hairs, close to the midline and directed posteriad: one pair at the middle of clypeal carinae, one pair at the anterior margin of frontal lobes; three or four pairs between the end of frontal laminae and occiput; two hairs near the rounded occipital corners; head with very sparse and appressed pubescence; eyes with micropilosity; gula with 4–8 short setae.

Viewed from behind and slightly above the pronotum is evenly shallowly convex, with humeri broadly rounded. PW (pronotum width 0.33–0.36 mm; with