

Diabolus, Diceratoclinea, and Acanthoclinea, but none of these would include our species. It comes in the tribe Dolichoderini Emery on account of the texture and sculpture of the integument, but the shape of the cloacal orifice does not agree with that of Dolichoderus. It seems, however, safer not to make a new genus on only one specimen.